DARING DINING

words SUNNY HUBLER / photo MEKENZIE LOLI

CREATING A DINING ROOM THAT'S BOTH ELEGANT ENOUGH FOR special occasions and comfortable enough for entertaining isn't an easy feat. Fortunately, Beth Keim knows a thing or two about designing a balanced space. As the owner and principal designer of Lucy and Company, Keim takes pride in balancing looks and functionality within a project.

That balance is also clear in this dining room, photographed by Mckenzie Loli. While the clients wanted a modern space, they didn't want it to feel unwelcoming. Keim's use of the white walls and rug gives the space a classic chic feel while also making it brighter. Paired with the dark wood floors, the whole area feels more inviting. The artistic accents, like the painting and the custom chandelier, tie everything together and act as focal pieces in the room.
